

I&RC Newsletter

Get it right, first time and every time

Hello,

Welcome to our newsletter and website. Thanks for joining us on the journey of improving investigations and forensic interviewing.

Have you got a real passion to make sure investigations are impartial, detailed, thorough and evidence led, but sometimes find yourself lost, due to lack of training, confidence and specific skills. Then here at I&RC, we aim to fix that.

Our experts, DR Laura Dominique and Keith Harbottle have over thirty years of investigative experience covering the minor safeguarding issues to the most serious and criminal levels of abuse on children and vulnerable adults. We can provide tailored training for your organisations' needs focussing on investigation and forensic interviewing in addition to Independent Investigative Reviews of your current cases – an issue which was raised in The Whyte Review, that organisations with a responsibility for safeguarding should consider. Our training events and workshops challenge many of the fundamental issues within investigations and safeguarding and we have delivered to international and domestic audiences, and we will be delivering bespoke workshops and training events online and face to face. See our testimonials

Watch this space for a unique one-day event later this year where we are teaming up with other experts to take you through the complexities of an abuse investigation and the mental health strain of those involved.

Every 6-8 weeks we will deliver our free newsletter straight to your device where we will share expert knowledge, tips and best practice to give your more confidence in your investigations. Sign up here
